AUNT CYNTHIA

¢***** [Original.] As Reginald Crane and his newly wedded wife stepped on the train to go to his home a telegram was handed him. A cloud gathered on his brow. "What is it?" asked his bride anx-

The young couple satisfied the family's expectations by inviting Aunt Cynthia to make her home with them, and she removed, bag and baggage, to their house. She stepped from her own household. which she had managed for forty years, to the position of guest in the household of Martha Crone. "She'll make it hot for us both." remarked the young man to himself, but to his wife he said he sincerely hoped the old lady would be happy in her new home and make them happy too. The Van Winkle family, who were ost interested in Aunt Cynthia's welfare, waited and watched to see how heir relative would be treated, espeally by Martha. It was not long bee they learned from the old lady self that, while Reginald was the rfection of kindness, he had made very unfortunate marriage. Aunt othia was one of those persons who ist have confidants, and, honestly being that she was being very badly ared by her nephew's wife, she red a tale of woe into the ears of ry relative. Her defense of Regicounted for nothing with these le, because they said he knew n he married Martha Grant that uncle would not live long and his would need a home; therefore ould not have married at ail. was the position taken by the Winkle family, and Peter Van when the old lady one day

Every couple has its own troubles to meet without being called upon to suffer needless complications, and the Cranes had theirs. The two together so wore on them that they were at times in but little better condition than Aunt Cynthin. So it got out, through Aunt the New York yacht club, whose flag-Cynthin, that Martha Crane was a ship, the North Star, lay off Centre shrew and poor dear Reggle was hav-laland, reached the Mayflower shortly shrew and poor dear Reggie was having a terrible life with her. This story was confirmed when at last Reginald broke down with nervous prostration. Peter Van Winkle heard of it on his way to prayer meeting and mentioned throne, calling the Lord's attention to the consequences of persons not doing their duty.

Reginald got better after awhile, but the aunt, not finding another home suited to her taste, came back and settied again with the Cennes. Mrs. Crane

Twenty-One Guns Were Fired From Each Ship - The Mayflower Steams Through Thundering Lines.

Oyster Bay, Sops. 4. - A mighty salute of twenty-one guas, fired simul-taneously by over, ship in the great fleet of Admiral Evans at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, announced that President Roosevelt had boarded the Mayflower to steam out to review the warships lying at anchor in three columns in the sound to the westward of Lloyd's Neck.

The President, who was accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt, drove down from his residence at Sagamore hill above the bay to the W. Emlen Roosevelt landing, where a launch from the Mayflow-er was in waiting. When the President stepped on to the quarterdeck a marine guard in full dress uniform presented arms, there was a ruffle of drums and hen came the strains of "Hail to the Chief," floating over the water, In

MARVELOUS CURE BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"My son, who is now twenty-two years of age, when he was four months old began to have eczema on his face, spreading quite rapidly until he was nearly covered. We had all the doctors around us and some from larger places, but no one helped him a partiale. The eczema was something terrible, and the doctors said it was the worst case they ever saw. At times his whole body and face were covered, all but his feet. I had to bandage his limbs and arms; his scalp was just dreadful. I used many kinds of patent medicines before trying the Cuticura Remedies,—all to no avail.

"A friend teased me to try Cutieura.

A GOOD CAMPAIGN STORY. Rival Candidates for Governor of Kentucky Slept in Same Bed.

The appointment of James S. Hariau to the interstate commerce commission and the renewal of the gossip that his father, Associate Justice John M. Harian of the United States and become will retire from his position and become the republican candidate for governor of Kentucky, a position which he sought as an opponent of James B. McCreary 30 years ago, has revived many of the stories connected with Judge Harlan, James B. McCreary and John M. Harlan canyassed Kentucky together, he James B. McCreary and John M. Harian canvassed Kentucky together, heing, respectively, the candidates for the democratic and republican parties for governor. They had agreed to argue the questions before the people in joint debate, and it was understood between them that they should niternate, one speaking first one day and the other the next. In traveling over the state they came to many hotels in the smaller county seats, especially in the mountain counties, where they were compelled to share the same room, and not infrequently the same bed. The two rival candidates dates had always been warm personal friends, and their ambitions to fill the same high office placed no detriment in the way of that friendship. They had the same agreement in their bed part nership as in speaking; they alternated in sleeping in the front part of the bed. Upon the night in question it was Justice Harlen's time to occupy the side of the bed nearest the wall, and he doffed his clothing first and got in hed. Senator McCreary was not far behind, and just as he entered the bed Judge Harlan raised his bulky form-he is a large man-and suld in his stentorian

"McCreary, there is one thing certain: the next governor of Kentucky is in this bed." As he spoke the bed slats broke, and Junge Harlan rolled to the floor. Senator McCreary caught Harlan reached the floor, said: "John, you are right, the next governor of Kentucky is still in this bed."

Recently Senator McCreary was asked if the story was true, and he said of if the story was true, and he said saw a bull fight, to Bohadella, Granada, Seville, and other Spanish towns.
